Fees Increase

by Darlene Hearn
Underground Staff

On August 23, 1993, a report commissioned by the Council of Ontario Universities (COU) was released. The report recommended that the Ministry of Education and Training raise standard tuition fees 30 per cent over the next two years and also increase in the discretionary amount universities can choose to charge on top of the base fee.

Such a fee increase would raise the tuition of a typical full-time arts and science undergraduate by $1000.

The COU also suggested a restructuring of the student aid program. Substantial increases to tuition fees for professional and graduate level programs were recommended as well.

The COU is composed of the presidents of Ontario's independent universities, along with one representative from each of their faculty councils. COU funding comes from the member universities' operating budgets.

Ontario's education minister David Cooke have been quoted as saying that university students could expect a substantial increase in tuition by 1994-5, equal to or greater than the most recent seven per cent increase.

University of Toronto president Bob Pritchard strongly supports the COU report, stating that the proposals could substantially improve post-secondary education in Ontario.

Leigha Lee Theatre Late

by Wes Grant
Underground Staff

The Leigha Lee Browne Theatre (formerly known as the Blackbox Theatre) has been temporarily delayed in the completion of its renovations.

Formerly scheduled for completion by September 1 the renovations were to provide a more suitable theatre space for the drama students at the college. The new completion date is now October 8. According to a memo circulated by Scarborough's Physical Plant Services the delay is a result of a hold-up in receiving funding from SAC for the elevator for the disabled. The cost of the elevator is $146,000 and should be installed by late December.

The memo, signed by Brian T. Smith, manager of the Physical Plant Service (Building Division), indicates there will be an increase in construction noise in the areas of the S-wing, Bookstore, and portables, though it should tolerable most of the time. He asks for everyone's patience during this period and hopes that there will be as little inconvenience as possible.

Smith also requests that if anyone has any questions or comments, or is presented with any inconvenience, to contact him at 287-7583.

Settlement Reached

by Jason Pasquale
Editor-in-Chief

Litigation against the Underground and some of its staff members was settled out of court during the summer.

A libel case, which had been ongoing from the spring term of the 1991-92 academic term, was settled. Both parties stated they were satisfied with the outcome and refused further comment.

Welcome Back

First and foremost welcome frosh! I hope you enjoy your year as much as most of you enjoyed last week. Those who didn't attend Orientation have alot to catch up on, and classes are just starting.

Welcome also to everyone returning this year. You'll realise that our overall structure appears the same but there have been alot of internal changes. I'ld like to encourage everyone to come by and 'check us out'. Of course, we are looking for help this year, particularly in our "Local News" department.

The expected comments said, I'll be cutting this week's editorial remarkably short (yes PP, there is a higher power). Next week expect us in finer form, which just may be our motto this year.

Our letters policy appears in our Masthead box in every issue, however, for the first one this year I thought it would be appropriate to print it in a somewhat larger form in a more dominant position.

We heartily encourage students to submit letters on any topic they feel relevant.

All letters to the Editor must be typed or printed and delivered to The Underground before noon, Friday. The length of the letters must be restricted to 200 words or less. The student's name and ID number must be included. Submission does not guarantee use.

Orientation Week

A summary of memories for those who don't their own.

by Marie McNulty
Underground Staff

Well, Orientation 9T3 has come and gone and a few students are still suffering from sore throats due to excess yelling. After kissing Mom and Dad goodbye, the frosh were stripped of any individualistic identity they had and were assimilated into coverall-clad, spray-painted maniacs.

First, the frosh had to be trained. Lord Bracsman Mark Proulx, led the group and soon they had mastered their attitude checks. Proulx showed great stage presence and kept the frosh captivated.

Any frosh who decided to deviate from the group was quickly put back in line with a shot from the bracsmen's high-powered water pistols.

A new addition to the agenda this year included 20 minute seminars to make the frosh aware of the facilities they pay for at Scarborough College. Speakers included Campus Police, Health Services, Athletics and Physical Plant Services.

After a Pizza Pizza lunch, the Playfair began. Held in the Meeting Place, this event was an ice-breaker pep rally where the frosh were actually involved.

Thursday night, hundreds of frosh danced and drank the night away to the music of Energy 108. Even if you are not a fan of dance music, the spectacular light show was not to be missed. The DJ's, however, skipped more than one record and encountered feedback from carrying the microphone too close to the speakers.

Throughout their Basic Training Dayz frosh could earn money tokens for participating in crazy stunts or activities. This "money" could be used at an auction held later on.

Some frosh did the typical push-ups while others actually licked the boots of their Lord Bracsman to earn cash. One frosh chewed a strawberry flavoured condom like gum for $500.00 in pseudo-cash.

The traditional downtown excursion took place Friday. The day was filled with the carnival and more unusual forms of entertainment including a hypnotist.

Music was not forgotten as our frosh were entertained by "Me, Mom and Morgantaler" and "The Waltons". The only downfall to this party was, according to one student, "they were not serving".

If the lack of alcohol was a problem for some frosh they soon found a solution. The annual trip to "Ye Old Brunswick House" took place even though it is no longer a scheduled event.

Proulx stated that the emphasis and attitude of this group was different than in past years; according to him the frosh of Orientation 9T3 to have placed a greater emphasis on socializing and being part of a team rather than drinking themselves into oblivion.

This is not to say there weren't any problems. At the Energy 108 party one frosh was kicked out by pub staff for bringing his own alcohol in.

Great organization and planning of orientation 9T3 was evident through other events such as the Scavenger Hunt, hypnotist Casey Bones performance and the ever popular Gauntlet.

Congratulations to Group 17, led by Jay Kilgannon, for winning the Scavenger Hunt and to all the frosh who survived the Gauntlet. We hope the garlic and mustard odour fades before classes start.

Another party, DJ-ed by Rhythm and Rhyme, ended Saturday's festivities and the Meeting Place looked even more packed than the night before.

Sunday morning. The coveralls were put away and our frosh groomed themselves well to meet their parents for the Principal's Brunch. The only disappointments for this gathering were the long lines for food and small portions.

Proulx would like to thank Pina, Eric, John and everyone else who helped make the Basic Training Dayz of Orientation 9T3 memorable.

The craziness may be over for another year but hang onto those attitudes!

Great so far. Seminar wasn't that great Easy to meet people as no social structure due to overall.

ORIENTATION

Rez Orientation'93:

"A Good Time Was Had By All"

by Fred Procunier, President, SVC
Contributing Writer (& Amatuer Weather Reporter)

Well once again orientation has come to an end, but what a great adventure it was!!!

Although Monday morning brought "showers of doom", Student Village Council (SVC) was well prepared. As Rez students filtered into the Rez centre, SVC Treasurer, Gerald Abshez, handed them their orientation kits. Meanwhile on the A-Block patio, in the middle of a thunderstorm, Mark Gordon, SVC vice-president and myself were courageously putting up a up tarp to keep out the rain for our evening BBQ.

While the rain dampened the afternoon scavenger hunt, the sun came out just in time for the BBQ , turning the tarp into a sun-screen.

The BBQ itself was a smashing success!!!

Everyone had lots to eat, plenty to drink and an all out great time carousing to the "hot, hot, hot" tunes, spun by Calvin Wong.

To top off the first evening of Rez orientation, I performed the miraculous event of getting wet wood to burn, while listening to the melodious harmonies of the great Rez guitar duo, Wai and Smith. Hundreds came to hear them play and sing along "living life like a French movie".

Tuesday morning was bright and sunny. Off to an early 10:30am start, Rez students had brunch in the Rez centre. Later that afternoon SVC Athletic Commissioner, Scott Churchward, organized a fun-filled beach-ball/volleyball tourney on the R-wing field. Rain clouds would bother us no more as Rez geared up for its 2nd annual September-Fest party. Sept-Fest sausages and friendly libations were had by all, as Kelvin mixed Pearl Jam and Polka tunes.

To top off the evening Rez students were bewildered to find the Village Centre transformed into a Karaoke Bar!!! Although the Karaoke disc selection lacked any Doors material, they had other neat songs like "Born To Be Wild" and "Yellow Submarine". A great time was had by all, but unfortunately not all were able to attend.

Wednesday morning brunch was a tasty treat. The early afternoon was taken up by tours of the College, making stops at Health Services, the Campus Police and the Attic among other important places. The Rez had its own afternoon of caravan fun as students went on a multi-cultural tour.

Various houses in Rez had food, drink and music of such varying cultures found in Rez such as Iranian, Israeli, German, Chinese and many more.

As the final evening of Rez orientation came to a close Rez-folk crowded into the Village Centre to listen to the blues of "Deep Down" and dance to the tunes of Kelvin's phyrric wizardy.

As I look back on it now it makes me think of what Rez orientation is all about: free food, plenty of drink topped off with excellent tunes and down to earth people. A great was had by a great set of people. After a successful orientation one can only speculate about what an incredible year lies ahead!!!

Coming Attractions

Now that the summer is over the studios have another slew of films set for release. Many of these films are less action orientated and more dramatic than the summer blockbusters (which some will see as a blessing) but are still worth the watch. Ahead are just a few of the films set for a fall and winter release date.

Robert DeNiro returns to screens once again in A Bronx Tale. This film tells the story of a young boy who becomes torn between his father and the charismatic crime boss who takes him under his wing. This film also marks DeNiro's directorial debut and advance word is that it is a very well made picture.

Heaven and Earth returns Oliver Stone to Vietnam once again. This film differs from Stone's other ventures into this area as it depicts a Vietnamese woman's experiences of war and peacetime in both her homeland and in America. Tommy Lee Jones (Under Seige, The Fugitive) stars in what promises to be a gripping, emotional film.

Julia Roberts returns to the movies, after an extened absence, in the adaptation of John Grisham's bestseller The Pelican Brief. Co-starring Denzal Washington and directed by Alan Pakula (All The President's Men, Presumed Innocent), this film will hopefully be the suspenseful thriller that the book was.

Action fans should not despair with all the dramas being released. There are a few movies being released that should quench your thirst. The most promising looking action drama being released is A Perfect World, which stars Clint Eastwood and Kevin Costner and is directed by Eastwood. It tells the story of an escaped convict (Costner) who builds a friendship with the boy he has taken hostage, and of the State Police Chief (Eastwood) that is in pursuit. With these two actors involved expect a very enjoyable film.

Lastly, for animation fans December marks the release of Batman: The Mask of Phantasm (The Animated Movie). If you are a fan of Batman: The Animated Series then you will more than likely want to see this one. It's brought from the same creators and done much in the same style as the television series.

These were just a few of the upcoming releases in the next couple of months. To find out what the new films are and when they are being released keep your eyes peeled to your local listings.

The Tea Party's Good 'til the Last Drop

by Wes Grant
Entertainment Editor

A new bright spot has emerged on the Canadian music scene, The Tea Party. This group hails from Windsor, Ontario and their first release, Splendor Solis, is an impressive one. The group consists of members Jeff Burrows, Stuart Chatwood, and Jeff Martin.

The Tea Party can be described as a mixture between The Doors and Led Zeppelin. Lead singer Jeff Burrows' voice sounds hauntingly reminiscent of Jim Morrison's. Their sound is also similar in certain respects to the current grunge-rock scene dominated by groups such as Pearl Jam and Stone Temple Pilots. With this musical mixture they could be classified as something along the lines of psychedelic-grunge.

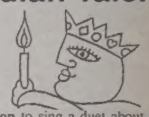
Most of the tracks have a psychedelic edge to them, heard most notably in "The River", "In This Time", "Dreams of Reason" and "Raven Skies." The song "Sun Going Down" incorporates a mix of different types of music into it. It begins sounding like the blues and slowly moves into more of a hard rock sound.

Their sound is a throw-back to the late sixties period when artists were experimenting with new sounds to give their music an edge over everyone else. This album has captured that same sense and feeling. While some of the songs may seem harsh and heavy in spots it is in turn counterbalanced by some of the softer songs. The strictly instrumental track "Winter Solstice" is easy to listen to, and it works as a perfect balance to some of the heavier rock tracks.

Were any of the songs disappointing? Surprisingly, no they were not. Listening to Splendor Solis was like listening to a group from the late sixties, and if you are into that type of music then you are in for a real treat. The best aspect of The Tea Party's debut album is that it is sounds even better with each listening.

Kumbaya.
My Lord! Canadian Talent

by Darlene Hearn
Underground Staff



Labour Day weekend in Toronto usually marks the traditional mass exodus from the city to cottages and northern resorts for that last grasp of summer. However, this year there was an excellent reason for staying home: The Kumbaya Festival.

On Sunday, September 5th, over 40 Canadian artists and performers took to the outdoor stage at the Ontario Place Forum to raise money and awareness about people living with AIDS. The Kumbaya Festival, organized by singer Molly Johnson, entertained the capacity crowd in attendance with a live coast to coast MuchMusic broadcast. The event enjoyed widespread support of Canada's music, television, video, visual arts and business communities. All the money raised from the ticket sales, pledges and T-shirt sales will go directly to fund 27 AIDS hospices and outreach centres across Canada.

Performances by artists such as 54:40, The Waltons, The Holly Cole Trio, Moxy Fruvous, Blue Rodeo and the Tragically Hip, as well as comedians and radio and television personalities made this the event of the Canadian entertainment industry. The performers viewed the Kumbaya Festival as an excellent cause to donate their talents. They also saw the event as one of the few chances for Canadian musicians to perform together, something that is usually reserved for highly competitive music award shows.

Kumbaya provided a venue for Murray McLauchlan and Lee Aaron to sing a duet about lonely cowboys. As well as Tom Cochrane and Molly Johnson teamed with Alec Lifeson on guitar to do bluesy rendition of "Muddy Waters". The surprise of the evening was the up and coming Guelph band King Cobb Steelie and their etheral vocalist Katherine Rose.

The musical performances, however, were only a part of Kumbaya's message. Representatives of several HIV positive groups spoke between acts. They told of their own challenges and triumphs with the illness and passed on to the audience their assured belief that a cure can be found for AIDS.

Backstage, the flurry of dedication continued as Andrew McNaughton photographed the performers for a Kumbaya calendar, for distribution later in the year. Video artists, including Kurt Swinghammer, produced AIDS awareness spots for the telecast and 12 local artists were busy creating canvases for auction at next year's event.

Over $200,000 was raised as a result of the Kumbaya Festival. It will undoubtedly become a new tradition for Canadian artists and audiences.

The Real McCoy is a Real Mess

by Wes Grant
Entertainment Editor

Kim Basinger as a retired bank-robber? A cat burglar so skilled that she is the only one able to devise a plan to break into one of the country's most tightly guarded banks? Sound plausible? The makers of The Real McCoy hope so; but are they ever wrong!

Basinger portrays Karen McCoy, a former bank-robber who has just been paroled after serving six years. It seems that McCoy just wants to leave her past behind her and somehow get reacquainted with her son. The only problem here is that her son thinks that she's dead!

Her problems are compounded when she is blackmailed into pulling off one last bank heist. Enter badguy Terence Stamp (Superman 2, Young Guns), who kidnaps McCoy's son so that she will do his bidding.

McCoy teams up with J.T. Barker, played by Val Kilmer (The Doors, Thunderheart), to help pull off the bank job. Will they succeed in the robbery, somehow outsmart the villains, and then rescue McCoy's son? By this point in the film you won't really care anyways.

Had the filmmakers cast their lead role with someone who could act the film may have worked. Basinger, though, could not act her way out of a shoe box! There is no doubt that Basinger is a beautiful women but she has neither acting ability nor dramatic presence.

The supporting cast should have been able to save Basinger and mask her lack of talent, but they are just wasted here. Kilmer's comic talents should have been played up more, but it appears that whenever he begins to do something amusing the scene is cut abruptly short. Director Russel Mulcahy (Highlander) doesn't seem to want to use his actor's talents, perhaps for fear of upstaging Basinger and having to be subjected to her wrath.

Not all the blame for this movie's smell can be laid on the actors and director; a large part of this film's stink can be attributed to the screenwriters. The plot is filled with far too many convenient situations and coincidences to be at all believable. It makes you wonder just how much someone got paid for this script.

VAL KILMER and KIM BASINGER star in THE REAL McCOY.

The biggest disappointment in the film though was the actual robbery. The entire movie leads up to this and it was a major letdown. What kind of heist film is it when the heist is a big disappointment. Even the way the bad guys are outsmarted is ruined, though this is the fault of whoever put together the theatrical trailer. If you have seen the preview then you know what happens to the bad guys at the end.

This film is definitely not recommended, so don't waste your money. The only good thing I can say about The Real McCoy is that I am glad I saw it for free.

ASK LAUREL

by Laurel Henning
Health Contributor

This is the first column from the Health Service in this school year, and we are very pleased to be the place on campus for you to go to learn more about your health, and how to take care of it. We have a nurse manager, Jean Benson, a health educator and myself, as well as three doctors, two psychiatrists, and one social worker counsellor. There are also six peer health educators who help promote programs, especially safe sex! They are students, too, so they know how to relate to any problems students may have. We hope that you will feel free to come and see us.

Last year, we had Sue Johanson come to the campus to provide information and answer questions about sex, which she did, with her own great style! So many questions were submitted that time did not allow her to answer them all. So I am going to respond to the ones that were left over. Questions can be submitted anonymously either to Health Services or to the Underground in a sealed envelope addressed to "Ask Laurel". I will answer any question or concern you may have relating to sex, relationships, birth control, STD's, AIDS, alcohol and drug abuse, eating disorders, stress and any other health concern you may have. And do not forget that you can also come in person to S304, or phone for an appointment at 287-7065.

Question: "What's the best method for ensuring safer sex in all situations"?

Answer: The best way to ensure safe sex is to use a latex condom with lubrication. Spermicide foam is the best, but about 25% of women are allergic to foam and so women should try it on some part of their skin before using it. If no reaction occurs, it is safe to use. K-Y jelly or some other lubricating jelly made specifically for condom use my be substituted. These products prevent the condom from tearing. When condom and foam are properly used together the pregnancy rate is almost nil. The pill is a very common form of birth control, but it should be used with a condom; birth control pills alone do not protect against HIV infection or other STDs.

There are many other questions that were asked about sex, and I'll try to answer as many as I can. Please send others along, and do come to the "Safer Sex Party" hosted by the Peer Health Educators in the Residence Centre this month. There will be lots of free condoms available! Watch for further details!

Have Your Say

The Right to Walk in Peace

by Madam M.

"Hey Baby, can I have a piece of you?" The guy in the car slows down to shout out the window before he speeds ahead. Hint: Women do not find this behaviour appealing or flattering. In fact, most women consider the cat calls, hoots, hollers and gaping mouths both insulting and threatening.

For some unknown reason these men feel they have the perfect right to obscenely comment on the shape of a complete stranger's body. No matter what this woman is wearing, whether it be a granny dress or a cat-suit, she does not deserve to be insulted as she goes about her business.

Would men say the same things to women if they knew our names, occupations, our personalities and goals in life? Probably not. What theses men are commenting on are body parts. This is dehumanizing and insulting, guys.

Further, we do view these comments and whistles as insults. The lone fact that some men feel they have the right to comment to an unknown woman about her body is absurd.

No woman is impressed when "Nice ass!" is shouted out at her from a fellow pedestrian. Comments like these make me question what these men really expect us to do. Do they think we are going to turn around, bat our eyelashes and exclaim with joy, "I'm so glad you like me ass ... maybe we should go out sometime."?

This brings another thought to mind. Generally, the men that make these comments are with small groups of equally intelligent men. One day they will clue in that their disrespectful behaviour may be an explanation as to why they are seldom seen with a group of women.

There are times when this type of harassment - yes, it is harassment - goes beyond insulting a woman. Many times this behaviour makes us feel threatened and fearful.

Just last week, here at Scarborough College, a female student was walking alone across campus. She stopped two other students, a man and a woman whom she did not know, to ask them if she could stand and talk with them for a minute because she thought a man had been following her as she walked.

While the three students stood outside talking, the man changed direction and went into a residence house. Maybe no harm was ever intended but fear and panic were bred into the woman because of our society.

With young girls and women being attacked and disappearing left, right and centre, do you think we want to be walking along the sidewalk or through a subway station to hear footsteps catching up behind us? What about a strange voice saying "Come here and smile for me honey."? Out first instinct is to freeze up inside, run and scream.

Of course there is always an exception to every rule. When a guy subtly turns his head as a woman walks by she may feel both flattered and attractive.

What is the difference between this man and the harasser? The key word here is "subtle".

We are not stupid, guys. If you quietly turn your head as we walk by we will usually pick it up. If we are interested we will look back and maybe even smile or say "hello".

If we do not respond it is not because we need you to aggressively whistle and shout. It is because we are simply not interested.

Confused? I hope not. I also can't speak for all women but I think I speak for many when I say this: ...The bottom line is that women find crude comments insulting and dehumanizing. They make us angry.

If you feel you must grab the attention of a woman who is a stranger to you please be subtle. In most cases, with a slight look and perhaps a simple "Hi" we'll get the idea.

Do not approach us, shout comments or whistle - especially if we are alone or at night. This makes us feel threatened and fearful. Lastly, under no circumstance should you touch a woman to get her attention.

Believe me. If you respect our feelings and fears it will leave a lasting, positive impression.

Wrestlers Sought From Scarborough

by Jason Pasquale
Editor-in-Chief

The UofT Amateur Wrestling Club is hoping to transfer to their competitive practice cycle on September 27. Peter Brown, spokesperson for the club, wishes to strongly encourage people to visit and participate in this recreational activity.

The club currently meets Mondays and Wednesdays between 6 and 8pm in the Knox College gymnasium (59 St. George). When they switch to the competitive training cycle the group will also meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays. No experience is necessary, though for those who have trained there are established sparring partners.

The club currently consists of 52 active members. The club's lack of formal affiliation with the campus athletics department has maintained a strong community involvement; fully one-third of the current members are not associated with the university in any form. The youngest member is currently 10 years old, the eldest 42.

Brown would like to improve the club's demographic break-down in one particular area -- gender. While 5 women have signed up to begin in October all 52 current members are male. Brown said, "One area I would like to stress is the draw for women ... especially from Scarborough."

Annual membership in this recreational program is $30 for UofT students, faculty, or alumni and $40 for community members.

Brown also stated that he would like to thank the University, "(they) have shown great flexibility." He also stated that when the Department of Athletics finalizes how they wish to "handle" club sports the wrestling club will apply for formal recognition.
